What can football teach us about the wider world?

Let's look at this week's story

The men's FIFA World Cup 2022 has started in Qatar and will run until 18th December. It is the 22nd edition of the competition, and the first played in the Arab world. The 64 matches of the tournament will take place across eight venues in the country. Usually, the event takes place in summer but because of the extreme heat at that time of year, it has been moved to a November-December winter slot, though temperatures will still reach about 25°C. The decision to stage the tournament in Qatar has been criticised because of concerns over the country's poor treatment of the large number of workers from other countries, employed to help Qatar prepare for the tournament.

Men's FIFA World Cup 2022 Facts

-  The 2022 men's World Cup is being held for the first time in November and December; it usually takes place in summer months.
-  The matches will take place in 8 stadiums that are very close together. The longest distance between stadiums is 46 miles, a journey which would take around an hour, while the shortest distance is 3.1 miles, and this would take about five minutes.
-  The tickets for matches were sold very quickly, with Qatar, the USA, Saudi Arabia, England, and Mexico being the top five buying countries.

The ball is called Al Rihla, which is Arabic for 'the Journey' and is inspired by the architecture, boats, and flag of host nation Qatar.

Creator, Adidas, says the new ball is the most environmentally friendly football ever, having been designed from only water-based inks and glues. It is also specially designed using coloured lines to stand out.

Organisers estimate that around 1.5 million fans will attend the tournament, however, there are only up to 130,000 hotel rooms for visitors travelling to the country. So in 2019, Qatar signed a deal to lease two cruise liners, known as floating hotels, which will provide 4,000 cabins for visitors, with a third added earlier this year.

There are about 3 million people living in Qatar. The language spoken is Arabic and it is an Islamic country. People living in Qatar usually wear the national dress of abayas (traditionally worn by women) and thobes (traditionally worn by men). Visitors are requested to be respectful of local traditions, culture and customs and to wear clothing that covers shoulders and knees.

How do you think life in Qatar is similar to/different from your life?

Look at the resource below, which shares information about Street Child United and the Street Child World Cup.

The Street Child World Cup is an event organised by Street Child United (SCU). They have held four events since 2010, ahead of the men's FIFA World Cup.

Street Child United's vision is to build a global platform for street connected-children so they can demand protection, support and the opportunities that every child deserves. They focus on three Sustainable Development Goals (SDG), which were adopted by the United Nations in 2015 as a universal call to action to end poverty, protect the planet, and ensure that by 2030 all people enjoy peace and prosperity.

The fourth edition of the Street Child World Cup took place in Doha, the capital city of Qatar, 8th – 15th October 2022. 28 teams (13 girls teams and 15 boys teams) from 24 countries represented street children across the globe. They came together to participate in an international football tournament, a festival of arts (using painting, theatre, music and dance to be creative, make friends and express themselves) and a congress (formal meeting or series of meetings).

SCU shines a spotlight on children living in street situations, the adversities they face and the fundamental rights they lack. It is our mission to change this by advocating for their core demands: identity, protection from violence, gender equality and access to education.

Street Child United website

Do you think the Street Child World Cup helps to raise awareness of street children living in our world? Why might SCU have decided to run an event just before the men's FIFA World Cup?

What can football teach us about the wider world?

Reflection

The World Cup is a sports tournament watched by billions of people around the world. It provides an opportunity for us to learn about other countries and cultures.

British Values

Mutual Respect and Tolerance

World sports events provide an opportunity to learn about other countries and their cultures. Life is not the same for everyone and we can respect our differences.

UN Rights of a Child

Each country taking part in the men's FIFA World Cup has its own laws. If these laws protect our rights better than this Convention, then they should be used.

Useful vocabulary

Criticised

Expressed disapproval of something or someone.

The decision to stage the tournament in Qatar has been criticised.

Culture

The way of life, especially the general customs and beliefs, of a particular group of people at a particular time.

It provides an opportunity for us to learn about other countries and cultures.

Edition

One of a series of repeated events.

It is the 22nd edition of the competition.

Extreme

Reaching a high or the highest degree; very great.

Usually, the event takes place in summer but because of the extreme heat at that time of year, it has been moved to a November-December winter slot.

Spotlight

Receiving a lot of public attention.

As the World Cup is watched all over the world, it means the host country are given a huge spotlight.

Venue

The place where something happens, especially an organised event such as a concert, conference, or sports competition.

The 64 matches of the tournament will take place across eight venues in the country.

Can you use them in your writing this week?

- Look at this week's poster image. Does anyone know where it is? Explain that it is in Doha, Qatar and shows the flags of the countries competing in the men's World Cup football tournament. Have you watched or do you plan to watch any of the tournament?
- It is thought that around 5 billion people around the world will watch the men's World Cup this year. Why do you think so many people choose to watch it?
- The World Cup tournaments take place every 4-years and in a different host country. As the World Cup is watched all over the world, it means the host country is given a huge spotlight, with lots of people going to visit and learn about life and culture there. Share what you know or have learned about Qatar.
- What do you think will be some positive outcomes from the event?
- Read through the information found on the assembly resource. Is it an event you would like to attend?
- A charity called Street Child, run their own tournament ahead of the main event. Watch this week's useful video. Do you think the event is a good idea?

What do we know about life in Qatar?

- Write 'Qatar' on the board. Have you heard of Qatar before? Do you know anything about it?
- Explain that Qatar is a country in western Asia. Asia is a continent. Locate Asia on a world map. Do you know which continent the UK is part of? Can you name any other continents? Can you locate these continents on a world map?
- Using the world map found on this week's PowerPoint, look at where Qatar is located. Qatar sits on a small peninsular, which is a piece of land almost entirely surrounded by water, but connected to the mainland on one side.
- Look at resource 1, which shares some information about Qatar. How do you think life in Qatar is similar to/different from your life? Think about the weather, clothes, land. Would you like to visit Qatar?
- The men's FIFA World Cup has started in Qatar. Do you think you would enjoy visiting Qatar to watch some of the World Cup matches? What might it be like playing in the matches?
- There are 195 nationally recognised countries in our world. Some countries have different cultures, traditions and customs. Have you ever visited another country? What was it like? If you haven't, would you like to?
- Explore a world map that shares names of different countries and share if there are any you would like to visit in the future.

Reflection

There are many different countries in our world, each with its own traditions, customs and cultures. Learning about other countries can help us to become more understanding and respectful of other people's lives.

What is the Street Child World Cup?

- Share what you already know about the Street Child World Cup (perhaps from the main assembly) or what you think it might be. Do you have any questions about it?
- Explain that street children or street-connected children are children who depend on the streets for their survival e.g., they live or work on the streets or for whom the street plays a vital role in their everyday lives and identities. Were you aware there are street children in our world? What difficulties do you think they may face?
- Look at resource 2, which shares information about the Street Child World Cup. Do you think the Street Child World Cup helps to raise awareness of street children living in our world? Why might SCU have decided to run an event just before the men's FIFA World Cup?
- Many street children do not have a birth certificate or any form of identification, meaning it is difficult to access healthcare or education. How do you access healthcare and education (doctor, hospital, dentist, school)? How might your life be different now if you had been unable to access these things in the past?
- Drika was selected to take part in the 2014 Street Child World Cup. She connected with other street children, began to realise she had a voice and became determined to create a better future. She now has her own business. She said, 'I have always enjoyed football, I did not know it would change my life'. Do you think sport has the power to change lives? Do you think it could have the power to change yours?

Reflection

Street Child United has used sport to build a global platform for street children so they can demand protection, support and the opportunities that every child deserves.

KS2 follow-up ideas

Option 1

There have been 22 men's FIFA World Cup tournaments. The host country is selected by FIFA's Council.

- Can you find out where in the world each of the tournaments has been hosted and locate them on a world map?
- How many events have been located in each continent?
- Can you find out which country won each World Cup?
- Which country has won the most times?

Imagine you were on FIFA's council and helping to select a country to host a World Cup.

- Which country would you select? Why?

Option 2

Look at the men's FIFA World Cup football design for 2022, found on the assembly resource.

- Can you describe the colours, lines and shapes used?
- What do you like about it?
- Is there anything you don't like?

Create a football design that could be used for the next Street Child World Cup. Think about:

- What do you want the design to represent? Equality, being united, having voices heard, something else?
- What colours, lines or shapes will you use?

If possible, send your designs to Street Child United explaining what your football represents.

KS1 follow-up ideas

Option 1

In Qatar, winter daytime temperatures average 20°C-35°C. Temperature is a measure of how hot or cold something is. We use a thermometer to measure the temperature.

- Have you seen or used a thermometer before?
- Have you seen a digital thermometer built into a fridge?
- Where else might we find thermometers? Kitchen, hospital?

We can use a thermometer to measure how hot or cold it is outside.

- What do you think the temperature is today?
- Will it be hotter or colder than it is in Qatar?
- Will it be hotter or colder than it was last month? Why do you think this is?

Option 2

Work as part of a group of 4 or 5. As a group, you will become one of the teams taking part in the men's FIFA World Cup. Once you have selected a team, complete the following:

- Locate your team's country on a world map.
- Find out your team's flag and paint a picture of it.
- Find out one interesting fact about your team's country to share with the rest of your group.

Share your flags and interesting facts with your class before taking part in your own football tournament!

- Which country won your class tournament?

New-bee

A new species of bee with a dog-like 'snout' has been discovered in Perth's Kings Park, Australia. Ecologist, Kit Prendergast, made numerous discoveries whilst surveying bushland in Western Australia as part of her PhD, one of which is a new species of native bee. It has a protruding clypeus (the area below the antennae, but above the mouth) that is 'snout-like', so she named the new species Leioproctus zephyr after her beloved dog. Dr Prendergast explained, 'Not only is this species fussy, they also have a clypeus that looks like a snout. Hence, I named them after my dog Zephyr. She has been so important to my mental health and wellbeing during the challenging period of doing a PhD and beyond.' She added that the 'snout' in the middle of the bee's face could be used to push up the keel so that it can easily collect pollen from a specific native pea plant.

Bearded Tooth Fungus

A fungus so rare it has to be kept in a cage has been discovered at The Lost Gardens of Heligan, Cornwall. The fantastic, football sized fungus is one of only four species of fungi under the highest level of legal protection in the UK. It is illegal to intentionally pick, uproot or destroy it. The Bearded Tooth fungus (Hericium erinaceus) or Lion's Mane mushroom has been found growing at the gardens' bug hotel, 'Buggingham Palace.' Gardeners have erected a cage around the protected organism to keep it safe from foragers, who believe it has special properties that can help fight dementia and cancer. 'Usually, this mushroom is found in dense woodland where members of the public wouldn't see it,' said Toby Davies, the gardens' wildlife coordinator. 'I put the cage up—the main emphasis was partially because Buggingham Palace borders a playground, and the other thing is that it's edible.'

104 marathons in 104 days!

Jacky Hunt-Broersma, a South African ultra-runner who lives in Arizona, USA, ran 104 marathons in 104 days, setting a new world record. A marathon is 26.2 miles long meaning the ultra-runner covered 2,724.8 miles during her world record success. Jacky ran the distance equivalent to a marathon every day of the challenge. Running on trails, roads and a treadmill, she completed Boston Marathon's para-athletic race on day 92. This isn't the only amazing achievement that Jackie has made. In 2020, she became the first amputee to run 100 miles nonstop on a treadmill and she also ran for 23 hours and 38 minutes straight during the Aravaipa Strong Virtual Race! This world record holder raised nearly £173,000 for Amputee Blade Runners, an organisation that helps people with limb differences access quality prosthetics. She Tweeted in October, '...What a journey it has been. I'm so incredibly grateful for running because it's given me confidence to be myself and has shown me that I'm capable of so much more than I ever imagined. I will forever be grateful for this sport.'
